Pittsburgh International At Legion of Honor

PART I

By E. CASHION MAC LENNAN

The Pittsburgh International Exhibition of contemporary painting, no longer called the Carnegie International, which opened January 30 at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, San Francisco, is on the whole, one of great variety, color and vitality.

The show seemed to echo the two contrasting characteristics of the atmosphere and surroundings just outside the Palace doors. Some of the paintings had the poetic feeling of the delicate Golden Gate Bridge and the fresh spring greens of the landscape; while many others, particularly among the abstractions, seemed to repeat the thick low lying fog that enveloped the Bay, or the continuous, raucous, shocking blasts of the fog horns.

E. Cashion Mac Lennan, who exhibits regularly at the Carmel Art Association Galleries, has exhibited in numerous international, national, and All-California shows, and has received many honors for her work in oils, water colors and lithography.

"Modern Art isn't 'modern' any more," someone has said, and I translate that as meaning that even representational paintings are now generally handled with greater freedom, boldness, and realization of textural quality, though the themes may not be new—which is one good result of the modern movement. However, "modern" should mean "contemporary", and in place of "modern" I prefer the terms "non-objective, expressionistic, or abstractive" art. A few painters in this latter group seem to be avid followers of the "cult of incomprehensibility", and the work of others seems utterly childish and sloppily executed.

The show is truly international, representing 24 nations of Europe, the Western Hemisphere, Australia, Japan, and Israel. There are in all 226 paintings to be viewed, and several visits would be needed to study them fairly.

As one enters Gallery 14, American section, the visitor is faced by a very original polyptych, by Brian Connelly, called The Spectrum, for which much research into methods and media of the fifteenth century has been necessary. Each panel is painted in a different prevailing color; glowing tones of morning and moon, cooler tones of evening and moonlight; and each panel is full of objects, either obvious or enigmatic, all drawn and painted with great precision. The mechanics of the panels, which can be folded in various ways, fascinated the gallery visitors and caused much "argufying".

Near this work of Connelly's hangs a finely executed example of realism, The Toll Rope, by Andrew Wyeth. Also here is Holiday, a striking canvas by Colleen Browning, in which a girl in vermilion dress is placed rather centrally on an expanse of pavement that is littered by newspapers, and other bits of paper remnants. Could this be surrealism, or a plain commentary on careless American habits?

In this same gallery (there are four in all for American artists), are also a free water color rendering of Still Life in Winter, by Charles Burchfield; Bothwell's England, Early Spring; Leonid's The Heron; Josephine Paul's The Memory Lasts—these latter three poetic in feeling.

Here, too, hang Stephen Green's Kiss of Judas, having the quality of a mural; Joseph Oneto's stunning, The White Portico; Vasilieff's richly handled, Still Life with Lobster; Kenneth Davis' Sea Shells, in trompe l'oeil manner; Stumpfeig's Three Alone, one of

How Old Is Old?

BY LARRY BARRETTO

PART III

Geriatric treatment and gerontological research are still so new that those concerned with it aare forced back often on a cliche in answer to embarrassing questions about how to fill empty days. To he happy get a hobby.

Now I am all for hobbies myself and I think most people have a tolerant appreciation of them. They say, "Oh, sure, it's good to have a hobby; it will kill time." Although, why anyone wants to kill poor time is incomprehensible to me. It is running away from us fast enough as it is and accelerates its speed as we grow older. Science has proven that the passage of time between the ages ten and sixty is as five to one. In other words time passes five times as fast for a person of sixty as it does for a child of ten, which suggests that it is not really necessary to kill time.

In any case that is merely the by-product of a hobby. The important reason for having one is that when you can really lose yourself in it—that is, all thought of your body and its surroundings, a healing process takes place, very much the same as while you sleep. This leads to better health, greater tranquility and longer life. Some day, I have no doubt, insurance companies will reduce their rates for the man or woman who can prove he has an absorbing hobby.

There are many people who don't know what to take up as a hobby or who have a set aversion to the more usual ones. I can understand that; the sight of a stamp album fills me with nausea; but practically anything can become a hobby and will often lead one into unexpected and interesting situations. Here are a couple of examples which I can vouch for because I know the people involved.

The first concerns a woman who in her yeauth took up the study of geology. I think she did it because she was intensely shy and this kept her away from other humans. She became an expert in her specialized field, but she never addressed an audience on what she knew. She did, however, write an occasional learned paper for a learned periodical or two. On the strength of these articles a number of the big oil companies sought from time to time to employ her to find oil for them. Having plenty of money she always refused, but at the beginning of World War II an employer came forward to whom she could not easily refuse her services, nor did she wish to—the United States Government. For the better part of the war my friend trudged over vast flat areas, a couple of respectful colonels at her heels, saying "Drill here, but

Summons From Olympus

Romans, Greeks, Egyptians, Phoenicians, Barbarians are invited to join the Olympian Revels this Saturday night at Del Monte Lodge when the Carmel Art Association presents its third annual Arts Ball, a Night With the Gods. There will be dancing, grand march, pageant, fabulous murals created for the occasion. Tickets are available at the Carmel Art Gallery or at the door at the Lodge. The party is not invitational. Everybody is welcome.

Anyone who can drape a toga and wear a wreath like Caesar, or a bear skin and a pair of cow horns like a captive Gaul, or beads and a whisp of gauze like Cleopatra, will be regarded as costumed. Those who prefer may come in formal attire, instead of fancy dress, but costume is encouraged because it's more fun.

Official program in the adjoining column.

Patricia Cunningham, General Chairman of the Arts Ball, to be held this Saturday night at Del Monte Lodge, is about to see a dream come true for the third year in succession: A Night with the Gods.

In 1950, as a member of the Special Events Committee of the Carmel Art Association, she conceived the idea of an artists' ball to be held annually on the Peninsula. Monterey Peninsula Country Club was the scene of the fabulous Feast of Kulkulkan that made history that memorable night in 1951. The next year saw One Arabian Night as the theme of the second ball, held that time at Del Monte Lodge, to accommodate enthusiastic crowds.

Now the doors of the ballroom at the Lodge swing wide to admit throngs of Greek and Roman-clad celebrants who will view the magnificent murals executed by Patricia. She has chosen as her subjects Venus Rising From the Sea, Europe and the Bull, Leda and the Swan, Jupiter and the God Pan.

On all three occasions Patricia has written the pageant, painted the murals, carried out the decorations, and performed the multitude of tasks evolving from the organization of groups and individuals who have worked with brilliance and zeal to make the annual Arts Ball the glittering spectacle of color and authenticity for which it has become nationally famous.

Right-hand man in all three events has been husband, John, shown above with her in the photo taken at last year's ball. This year he is officially chairman of the decorations committee, unofficially hard-working member of any and every committee where someone is needed to help without notice.

Together they conduct the Carmel Art Institute, both teachers as well as painters.

Patricia Cunningham's one-man show at the Palace of the Legion of Honor met with so many plaudits from critics that paintings have been selected for showing in various parts of the country, starting Tuesday with the Santa Barbara Museum of Art. On February 19 she will travel to that city to lecture on modern painting. Portland, Oregon, Art Museum will be next to hang her paintings, and galleries in Utah and Texas will follow suit at a later date.

Students Collect Half Ton Of Clothing For Korean Orphans

The fabulous amount of nearly half a ton of clothing has been collected by the students of the Carmel Unified School District for the Korean War orphans adopted by the Third Infantry Division and Major John Gottlund's 3d Signal Company, according to Miss Dorothy Wright, Girls Principal of Carmel High School.

Pacific Grove's three elementary schools have collected an aggregate of almost a quarter of a ton of garments which are being stored at the warehouses of Minick Transfer and Storage Company in Monterey, awaiting shipment to Korea via San Francisco, said Mr. Wayne Greenfield, Coordinator of the Pacific Grove Elementary School System.

The problem of transporting the clothing awaits solution from Army headquarters in an attempt to expedite transportation of the packages to Korea via shipboard. The American Society of Friends Service Committee of San Francisco have volunteered to send the clothing to Korea after baling and waterproofing processes are completed, where it is to be distributed by the Army. It is hoped that this clothing collected for Major John B. Gottlund's company in the drive of his men to collect garments for the Third Army's Orphanage will reach that destination. Partial funds for postage have been allocated to Carmel High School for the purpose of mailing the collection via APO 468, but in order to send the remainder by parcel post it will necessitate a much larger sum of money than can be borne by subscription of the students, in either Carmel or Pacific Grove School Districts. Every effort is being made by telephone and personal contact to see that the clothing reaches its intended destination, i.e.; the 3d Signal Company, but in any case donors are assured that their gifts of warm clothing, blankets and shoes will serve the purpose of covering the little Korean victims of war, wherever they are most needed.

Plan Board Status In Jeopardy

At the moment, Carmel's seven-member planning commission consists of five members. By the end of next week, it may be boosted to nine, or reduced to none, if rumored mass-resignation of the remaining members takes place.

The unhappy situation is the result of Mayor Horace Lyon's refusal, at Wednesday night's council meeting, to name appointees to fill the vacancies created by the expired terms of Planning Commission Chairman P. A. McCreery and Mrs. Hurd Comstock, "until all members of the council can be present to vote, because there is a sharp difference of opinion among the council members on the appointments."

Councilman Francis Whitaker is away on a skiing expedition to Sun Valley and isn't expected back until next week.

Mayor Lyon pointed out that the planning commission could function as a five-member board, if all were able to be present at meetings, but for a margin of safety, he offered to make one appointment, Architect Lewis Snyder. This brought indignant protest from Councilman Don Craig, who is also a planning commission member.

"Your proposal to put in a man, for whom I have the greatest respect, ahead of the recommendations of the Planning Commission, is an insult to the commission."

Craig referred to the fact that the planning commission in a letter to the council had recommended McCreery's and Mrs. Comstock's reappointment.

The Mayor's suggestion of Snyder's name was not a rejection of the planning commission's recommendations, since he had opened the discussion with a statement that he proposed to increase the membership of the commission from seven to nine, which would allow him to make four appointments.

However, he refused to reappoint the retiring commission members at that meeting, though Craig urged it. All councilmen present stated that they would approve, and Craig pointed out that nothing toward harmony would be achieved by awaiting the return of Whitaker, "since it is no secret how he feels about this."

"Francis might change his mind," the mayor said blandly. "I'd like to have all the council in accord on this."

As a result, no appointments were made and it was decided to hold an adjourned meeting next Wednesday on the chance Whitaker would be back at that time.

The mayor opened the discussion with reading three communications, the planning commission's recommendation of the reappointment of McCreery and Mrs. Comstock, a communication from the Monterey Peninsula Architects Association suggesting three men who would be qualified to serve on the board, Edwin Lewis Snyder, Frederick Keeble and George E. Willox, and a letter from the Carmel Realty Board suggesting as possible appointees, E. H. Ewig, Frank Putnam, and Frank Murphy.

He stated that these letters, unprecedented in the history of Carmel Planning Commission appointments, were unsolicited.

He then outlined what he considered the two functions of the planning commission, "as I see it, to hold and preserve what we have, and to plan for the future so we can continue to hold what we like against new developments, and be prepared for changes we see coming.

"In this connection I have made a list of matters I think the planning commission should undertake.

Bring In Your Plow And Stew Pot To Valley Center

The Carmel Lions Club pickup committee goes into action Sunday on Operation Philippines. Anyone up Carmel Valley who has farm and garden implements, or kitchen utensils that would be useful to the Agricultural rehabilitation of the Huks in the Philippine Islands, are asked to bring them to the Carmel Valley General Store by noon Sunday.

If the donation is too big or transportation is not available to carry it to the dump center, a call to 7-6924 will bring Murl Ogden and Vince Torras in a truck to pick it up.

Big hearts in Carmel can leave their offerings at the Carmel Van and Storage on Sixth near Mission.

February 15, the Carmel Lions' truck will join the caravan of other trucks carrying material for "Operation Philippines" gathered by Lions clubs from here all up the coast to San Francisco, for shipment from San Francisco.

Musical Art Club To Hear Gustavson

The Musical Art Club is to have Eva Gustavson as soloist for their next concert at the Carmel Woman's Club on Sunday afternoon, February 15. This celebrated artist gave a memorable performance singing operatic arias with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra last month. At the next concert she will present a stirring group of songs which will include several by Grieg in her native Norwegian, German lieder by Brahms and Schubert, songs by Sibellius and others. She will be accompanied by Dorothy Heer, piano teacher, Salinas.

The concert which will begin at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon, is open to members of the Club and their guests. An opportunity is afforded to those who desire to secure or renew membership by calling the secretaries 7-3972 or 7-7808 in order to enroll for the current year.

Jerry Durbrow New Advertising Manager For The Pine Cone

Geraldine Durbrow, formerly of San Francisco, who with her two sons, Robert, Jr. and Philip, has made her home on the Monterey Peninsula for the last three years, is now acting as advertising manager for the Carmel Pine Cone.

Mrs. Durbrow, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, majored in political science. Upon graduation she entered the field of social service, dealing with urban cases in San Francisco. She then became private secretary to Covington Janin, Public Relations and Advertising for Dean Witter and Company. Subsequently she turned back to social service work, dealing with itinerant agricultural workers in the San Joaquin Valley. Deciding to try her hand at salesmanship, she was engaged by I. Magnin's San Francisco Ranleigh Shop, and later by Gump's, in their Discovery Shop. Later Gump's transferred her to their Carmel store. She feels that her experience in retail selling has been of particular advantage to her work in advertising, since it gives her insight into the problems of the retail merchant. Last year she aided the advertising staff of the San Francisco Chronicle on their special edition "Leisure on the Monterey Peninsula."

"Jerry" will write Scouting the Shops, among her other duties, under that by-line.

How Old Is Old?

don't drill there." Was she looking for oil? Not at all. She was locating water for the dozens of army camps that are sprining up like mushrooms all across the land.

The other hobby is that of a lady now in her eighties who decided many years also to collect the most popular book and the best book published in America each year from 1776 on. Each book to be of the first edition. The most popular book was easy to determine by its sale, but the best book required appraisals by the critics of its day as evaluated against present-day reaction for its quality of timelessness. Moby-Dick for example was probably not considered the best book of its year; not many people read it, but it surely is considered the best book now.

I will admit that my old friend got the enthusiastic help of bookmen, critics and savants everywhere when her hobby became known, that developed into a lively and absorbing correspondence; nevertheless it was a life work for her. It was not even a very expensive hobby. With the exception of Stephen Crane's The Red Badge of Courage for which the lady had to pay several hundred dollars, practically every book was within the reach of the average pocketbook. My friend announced that she wished to leave her tiny library to some deserving university on her death, and for years she was entertained and charmed by the visits of deans and professors who were as much in awe of that unique shelf of books as I was and each wanted it for his alma mater very badly.

Some people scorn hobbies unless they are useful which, I suppose, is as good a standard as any other. The difficulty is that they never find anything useful enough to interest them. But who can define the word useful? Once during the last war when I was in India I saw a child seated by the roadside on the edge of the famine area beyond Calcutta. Farther on they were eating the bark off trees, but it was not quite that bad here. The little girl's stomach was swollen in the manner of children where hunger is constant. She pressed to her skinny chest a stick which I realized was a substitute for a doll, and she made believe she was feeding the stick. She was hungry and so her "doll" must be hungry too.

Suddenly I realized the enormous, the overwhelming, value of that stick in a land where there was no firewood and people must cook with dried cow-dung, and I was obsessed with the desire to show the child how precious I, too, thought it was. Very quietly I took the stick from her and wrapped my handkerchief about it. "Sari," I said, referring to the Hindu woman's conventional dress, and handed it back. I had never seen anything before like the ecstasy on that child's face and I suppose I never shall again. I think if I were looking for a "useful" hobby and could carve dolls ever so crudely and could find someone to dress those dolls in native costume, my year's output would pay more dividends in the Orient in happiness than anything else I could do. I am afraid, however, that there are no organizations willing to distribute dolls in Asia; they are too busy distributing guns.

A columnist in one of the local papers has concerned himself considerably with pointing up errors in other publications, overlooked a beaut this week in his own, which carried a review of the current show at the Legion of Honor Gallery in San Francisco, including the observation, "France's Miro, in an abstract, Women, Men and Stamps, delighted us with his usual inimitable abstraction in color." The reviewer must have been "delighted" by remote control, because if she had gone to the show to look it over, she might have observed that another painting had been substituted for Women, Men and Stamps.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

There is one thing that I do not fool around with, and that's my lawn. Oh sure, I know all sorts of methods to bring a lawn back to beauty, but the trouble is that I do not have the equipment. There are splendid firms right here in Carmel who make a specialty of lawn care and this time of year I always contact a friend who does remarkable things to my lawn. Science has covered itself with glory in recent years discovering this and that by way of controlling lawn troubles.

The lawn moth is the very mischief to control and besides the ever-present moth trouble, there are all sorts of weeds and foreign grasses that can be simply sprayed to death. How on earth a chemical knows the difference between bent grass, Bermuda grass, crab grass and can eradicate these pests without damaging the lawn you planted, defeats me. There is one chemical that goes after crab grass,—another that spays Bermuda to death and on and on . . . all you have to do is yet an expert who knows the difference between these varieties and you save yourself the trouble of grubbing weeds.

I am getting ready for my spring and summer garden. I have found in the past that small plants in one flat are apt to be too many for the space required. So, I have requested one of our nurseries to do this: plant one third of a flat with cosmos; another third with Candytuft (hyacinth variety); and the other third with corn flowers.

These are the early varieties that go well in the spring, and as the season goes on, I will have delivered to me other flats with combinations of plants in each flat. One pays a bit more for this service, yet I think it better than buying a few plants here and a few there and bringing them home with the threat hanging over my head to plant right now, or else!

In years past I raised my own plants from seeds, but my life, these days, is so rushed taking care of other's gardens, that I am apt to neglect the care necessary to raise seedlings, and once the seedlings are allowed to get dry . . . goodbye, you have lost all your time and money for seeds.

I hope that all of your roses are pruned, in spite of the fact that some varieties are blooming their heads off right now. It is sad to clip buds from a rose bush, but if you don't, you won't have the proper rose crop when the true blooming period comes around. You will note that the blossoms right now are not the full size of the summer roses, so shut your eyes and get those rose bushes pruned before February goes out.

Someone on the radio is talking about a blue rose and is offering this rose with a few box tops and such. I've had my experience with these radio offers and all of those experiences have been bad, so I for one, am not biting on this blue rose offer. If it is a good rose, our local nurseries will carry it, so if you must have a blue rose, ask your local nurseryman and he will steer you in the proper direction.

Victoria de Los Angeles will be presented by the Carmel Music Society in concert at Sunset Auditorium Saturday evening, February 14, at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss de Los Angeles will sing the following program:

Recitative and Aria of Messagera, from "Orpheur", Monteverdi; La Violette, Scarlati; Oh, Had I Jubal's Lyre, from "Joshua", Handel. Widmung, Der Nussbaum, Ich Grolle Nicht, Schumann; En Priere and Fleur Jetee, Gabriel Faure; Kaddisch, from "Melodies Habraiques", Ravel.

Scene and Aria: Le Roi de Thule, and Air de Bijoux, from "Faust", Gounod. El Amor Es Como Un Nino, Nin; No Quiere Tus Avellanas and Jota Castellana, Guridi; El Pano Moruno, Seguidilla Murciana, Jota de Falla and Farruca, Turina.

She will be accompanied by Paul Berl.

PACIFIC GROVE-CARMEL HOOP NATURAL TONIGHT

Once-beaten Pacific Grove High invades the Padre pavilion tonight in an effort to get back on the accustomed victory trail. The classy Breaker varsity cagers ran into trouble at Gilroy last Friday night and dropped their first league tilt of the season. Minus the services of their sensational center, John Lewis, the Breakers proved soft touches for the talented Gilroy aggregation. However, the rubber-legged Lewis will be tutored, primed, and ready for the Padres tonight when the traditional rivals meet for their second clash this season. In the first tiff, the Breakers edged Carmel by four points and were hard-pressed to get over the Padre aggregation. A victory for the Breakers tonight will just about cinch a first place tie in the B division, while a win for Carmel will put them in a deadlock for the runner-up spot. Off the season records, the Breakers should top the local varsity but the Carmel lads have shown an aptitude to play just as good as the opposition. Playing against supposedly weak teams, the red and gray quintet resembles, an eighth grade playground team, but when stacked against the strong ones, the Padres catch fire and play topflight basketball. Carmel will open the varsity clash with Craig Moore and Art Schurman, forwards, Myron Branson, center, Mike Ricketts and Don Leidig, guards. The Breakers will counter with Jerry Lykins, Dick Reynolds, John Lewis, Bob Russell, and Tom Hoy. Lewis is the top scorer in the B division of the CCAL and is considered one of the finest rebounders in Northern California prep basketball.

Tonight's lightweight clash will be a real challenge for the little Padres as they try for an upset win over the undefeated Pacific Grove limiteds. The PG Wavelets have run roughshod over all opposition in the B league, winning just about as they please and now enjoy a 3-0 record in league play. Carmel's lightweights are tied for second place with a 3-2 record and would stand a mathematical chance to catch the high-flying Wavelets should they upset the favorites tonight. The PG Babes boast a double-barrelled scoring punch in Cal Moldenhaur and Larry Quentel. These lads are 1-2 in the lightweight scoring race and have been unstoppable so far this season. The little Padres will open with George Wightman, Dick Jennings, Howard Taggart, Tom Brosnan, and David Castagna.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel 7-3881.

PADRE BASKETBALL SQUADS DIVIDE WITH HOLLISTER

The lightweights did. The varsity didn't. Both teams suffered from a lack of respect for their opponents and had a rocky road all the way. The little Padres overcame their illness in the final quarter and finally finished in front, 34 to 31. However, the big Padres ran into a fired-up Hollister varsity and were paced by a pair of great football players, Art Sonniksen and Ben Parks, who scuttled the Padres with a barrage of baskets in the final quarter. Poor passing, cold shooting, and a porous defense betrayed the Carmel varsity as the Haybalers capitalized on the red and gray mistakes. Don Leidig was the top Carmel scorer and played a steady floor game. Hitting on only nine percent of their shots, the Carmel lads tightened up as the upset crept up on them and couldn't buy a basket during the fatal fourth period.

There was a lid on the basket for the little Padres during the first quarter of the lightweight tilt as the local lights could connect for only one basket in sixteen shots. Behind by four points at the half, the Padrecitos crept up on the hosts during the third period and finally drew into a 26-26 tie midway of the fourth quarter. The local midgets picked up a scant 32-30 lead with a minute left to play and controlled the ball for a hard-won victory. George Wightman and Dick Jennings topped the Padrecito scorers, but neither could match the 16 points racked up by Hollister's Burleson.

The Carmel squads have a double-header scheduled for this week, meeting Pacific Grove tonight and entertaining the classy Gilroy teams tomorrow night.

THROUGH THE HOOP

Lots of good basketball talent on display at the Carmel High gym tonight and tomorrow night. Tonight PG's fabulous John Lewis, All-CCAL center, will demonstrate how a 5-10 pivotman can control both boards and outjump players towering over six-feet. Tomorrow night, the smoothest basketball team in either division of the CCAL visits the Padre gym when Bob Hagen and his precision plus Gilroy quintet joust with the Padres. Gilroy boasts two of the cleverest hardwood artists in prep ranks in Tony Vigna and Ben Matulich. These lads handle the basketball with the skill of a Globetrotter and are exceptionally fine shots and playmakers. Gilroy is tied with Pacific Grove for first place in the B league. . . . Basketball teams visiting King City next year will enjoy the luxury of a brand new pavilion with all the latest conveniences. No more dressing in a stable at the fair grounds and showering under the garden hose. The new Mustang gym is adjacent to the new football stadium and will be one of the finest high school plants in Northern California. . . . Fremont High, a regular participant in the annual Carmel hoop tourney, will be on hand again this season and word out of the Santa Clara Valley League tabs the Indians as a threat to regain the crown which they lost to Monterey High last year. Paced by a high-scoring forward, Choate, and coach Marty Mathiesen's son, Bud, the Sunnyvale quintet is currently leading the SCVL and has whipped most of the big ones in the San Jose area. . . . The perfect hosts that they are, the Carmel Padres entertained Monterey Serra in a return pair of hoop tiffs last Tuesday afternoon and dropped the nod in both contests. The Serra lads played outstanding ball in both divisions and both games were well-played close contests. Tom Smith's lightweights edged the Padrecitos, 34 to 32, and his varsity eked out a 48-47 thriller over the Carmel heavies. Coach Smith has the best all-around basketball player on the Peninsula scorching the hoop for his varsity. His name is David Rudolph and he does everything right on the basketball court. Flawless defense, accurate passing, fine shooting, and topflight sportsmanship are just a few of the attributes of this fine cager. . . . The CCAL schools are pointing with pride to the fine record being compiled by Ken Sears, former Watsonville all-league center, who is drawing rave notices from coaches and sportswriters in the Bay Area.

CARMEL HOOP TOURNEY SLATED FOR FEBRUARY

February 26, 27, and 28th are big dates for varsity basketball teams of Patterson, Gustine, Gilroy, Gonzales, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Fremont (Sunnyvale) and Carmel High Schools as the annual Carmel hoop tourney is staged at the Carmel pavilion. This year's tournament should match the high quality basketball which has been associated with the popular basketball festival in past years. From the Santa Clara Valley League comes two-time winner Fremont, current leader in the strong prune valley league. Boasting a forward with All-Northern California status, Choate, the Indians must be conceded top billing with the defending champions from Monterey High. Monterey has the class and deep bench to throw off all challengers for the crown. In Charley Howell, the Toreadores have the tallest player in the tournament and all competing schools will have to stop the towering pivotman if they hope to take the measure of the green and gold. John Lewis, most valuable player in the tournament last year, will be hooking them in again for Pacific Grove as will his valuable teammate, Richard Reynolds. Gustine and Patterson are battling it out for first place in the San Joaquin league and are reported to be loaded with topflight basketball material. Favorite of the fans, Gilroy High, could well be the big surprise of this year's tourney. Equipped with two of the best prep cagers in Northern California, Ben Matulich and Tony Vigna, the Mustangs are cleverly coached by Bob Hagen and have the most enthusiastic student body in the league rooting for them. The Gonzales Spartans have been coming with leaps and bounds in recent outings and should reach their peak by tournament time. The lads representing Gonzales were lightweight champs last year and aren't used to losing hoop tilts. Carmel, tourney finalists for the last two years, will have to show amazing improvement if the red and gray colors are to fly in the finals this year. Strictly in and outers so far this season, the Padres could jell into a solid club ere the referee throws up the ball to start the sixth annual Carmel Tournament.

"Forward on Liberty's Team" will be the theme of Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13, celebrated nationally by the 3,250,000 boys and adult leaders now actively entrolled. Since 1910, more than 20,200,000 boys and men have been members.

The emphasis during this 43rd anniversary observance will be our "Scout Family" of programs meeting the interests of three age groups: Cub Scouting for boys 8, 9 and 10; Boy Scouting for those 11, 12 and 13, and Exploring for young men 14 and upward.

The high point of Scouting this year will be the 2nd Annual Scout-o-Rama to be held at the Monterey Co. Fair Grounds Feb. 13 and 14 and the 3rd National Jamboree. More than 50,000 Boy Scouts will camp on the Irvine Ranch in the Newport Harbor area of southern California next July 17 to 23.

Mr. James Taylor, who took over Troop 86 in Carmel as Scoutmaster in 1951, reports that already 11 boys from Troop 86 have signed up to go to the National Jamboree. This will be a wonderful opportunity for the local boys, because they can attend the Jamboree without having to go abroad, as so often the Jamborees are in foreign countries.

Crisis In Modern Music

XVI. KAROL SZYMANOWSKI

By DAVID WILSON

"Today, on an immense platform which might be that of Elsinore . . , the European Hamlet stares at millions of ghosts."—Paul Valery.

Poland is a nation bathed in bloodier tragedy than ever drenched the battlements of Elsinore; thwarted hopes, trusts betrayed, opportunities lost through irresolution, not only the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" but prodigious destructive blows from east and west, maiming and decimating—all these have starred her tragic passage through history, trailing a welter of blood. Obviously a bulwark of Western culture against Muscovite barbarism, Poland nevertheless received little aid and comfort from her powerful neighbours. When Europe was torn by the fanatic strife of the Reformation, Poland was a haven of religious tolerance; when the rest of Europe was "worm-eaten with liberalism", Poland became a centre of reaction; and when, conversely, reaction held sway in Prussia, Austria, and Russia, they united to obliterate Poland from the map, as being a seed-bed of liberalism. More recently, Poland purchased twenty years (1919-1939) of fitful independence by Pilsudski's victory over the Bolshevik invaders, only to lose it at Hitler's hands. At present, Poland is herself in name only, betrayed once again by her friends and cast into the jaws of the Russian bear. While the "great powers" stand idly by, the "lights of perverted science" — Winston Churchill's memorable phrase—are being used to reduce that noble people to mindless automatons. But Poland will survive her would-be assassins.

With these memories constantly passing before their eyes, the Polish people could not be blamed for nurturing a crabbed and bitter xenophobia; it is therefore almost miraculous that they have remained the most European of Europeans, the least provincial. I can think of no important Polish artist, composer, or man of letters against whom the charge of narrow provincialism can be laid. This contrasts sharply with the often sinister anti-European attitudes of even the best of the Russians, whether it be the simple chauvinism of Pushkin or the confused messianism of Dostoyevsky. The Polish spirit, from Kochanowski to Mickiewicz (Mitskyevitch), combines in unique harmony a richly cosmopolitan outlook with an ardent love of country. How much better Chopin would be understood were this widely realised! This unique harmony is not, however, achieved without immersion in the crucible of experience; indeed, certain representative Polish artists such as Zygmunt Krasinski and Adam Mickiewicz, poets, and Chopin and Szymanowski, composers, enacted this drama in their own lives, stood Hamlet-like between seeming opposites: and this dramatic tension makes for great art, if also for bad dreams. Mickiewicz ranged from St. Petersburg to Paris, was drawn in youth toward Russia and later turned his passionate attention to western Europe (in 1848 he told Pope Pius IX, "The spirit of Christ now dwells in the shirts of the workers of Paris"), yet he always carried Poland in his heart. Chopin's last request, scrawled as he lay speechless near death, instructed that his heart be removed—"As this earth will smother me"—and be taken back to Poland. Szymanowski is of their company, a bearer of Mickiewicz's immortal lamp.

Karol Szymanowski (1883-1937) was born at Tymoszowka, his parents' estate in a Polish section of the Ukraine. Unlike the Russian villages with their blue onion-domed churches and bestial atmosphere, the Polish region circling Elisawetgrad was a veritable outpost of civilisation; the Szymanowski estate was a centre of the arts. Had it not been for a severe leg injury, which forced him to lead a sedentary life, young Szymanowski might not have become anything more than a cultured country gentleman. As Pascal said about Cleopatra's nose, "had it been shorter, the whole face of the world would have been changed", thus it was with Szymanowski: a fateful accident did change the whole course of his life, channelling all his activities into the narrow stream of composition, and—grim price!—paving the way for the tuberculosis that finally ended him.

Chopin was, as might be expected, the dominating influence on Szymanowski's early work, from the Piano Variations to the First Piano Sonata. This early influence later became a bond across the vale of years, far more than the tenuous link between imitator and imitated; and while that fraternal feeling should not be overlooked, it is only one facet of Szymanowski's creative personality and not, in my view, that of greatest significance. As the cosmopolitan Chopin reflected many styles from Gyrowetz to Bellini and still remained so much himself that no one could listen to seven bars of his music without crying "Chopin!" so the equally cosmopolitan Szmanowski absorbed Skryabin and Debussy without provoking cries of "Skyrabin!" or "Debussy!" when his works were being performed. Absorbing Skyabin is an innocuous term for something as dangerous as baiting the burbling Jabberwock—he was not called "the giant crocodile of modern music" for nothing! But with his vorpal blade going snicker-snack, Szymanowski cut whatever he needed out of the Jabberwock—I mean Skyrabin, and went galumphing back, chortling in his joy. What kind of beast is this Jabberwock, this Skyrabin?

Skyrabin was a composer of grandiose theosophic pretensions, of cosmic yearnings; once regarded with frenzied, corybantic adoration, but now dead beyond all hope of resurrection. This colossal fraud skipped nimbly up the heights that Palestrina, Bach, and Beethoven scaled only by slow and arduous degrees! but he did it with mirrors and mumbo-jumbo! For a time after his death in 1915, his frantic partisans attempted to maintain life in his music, which should have shuffled off this mortal coil arm in arm with its creator. Like M. Valdemar in Edgar Allan Poe's tale, his music was hypnotised "in articulo mortis" and given a spurious appearance of life; after a time, however, the spell began to wear off—what happened to M. Valdemar mirrors the collapse of the Skryabin myth. "His whole frame at once . . . shrunk, crumbled, absolutely rotted away beneath my hands. Upon the bed . . . there lay a nearly liquid mass of loathsome—of detestable putridity." That Szymanowski could come into contract with such frightful deliquescence and not be corrupted by it, not caught up in its vile grasp, is a measure of his balanced eclecticsm, the subordination of all influence to the exigencies of his artiste individuality. A lesser man, coming into contact with Skryabin would have gone the way of Creon, in Euripides' Medea, when he hurled himself upon the robe of fire that was consuming his daughter only to find that he, too, could not free himself from the robe's fiery embrace.

Ordinarily I am very suspicious about composers as eclectic as Szymanowski, and with sufficient reason: a coat of many colours all too often serves to conceal their secret poverty of inspiriation. As I have explained, however, a varied style and a cosmopolitan vision is inculcated by the Polish heritage. Szymanowski's multiversal manner is thus seen to be perfectly natural, not the result of the sort of monkey-gland injection that the international set of composers submit to when the effects of too many musical flirtations and too many "pousse cafes" begin to tell. "Their lean and flashy songs / Grate on their scrannel pipes of wretched straw"—deathless Milton's words are really too good to be wasted in describing the Bohuslav Martinus, the merry mixers of musical "pousse cafes".

Szymanowski's dilettante interest in Persian poetry and Islamic mysticism was reflected in those works—the one-act opera Hagith, the Love Songs of Hafiz, the 3rd Symphony, the Tagore

SALVADOR DALI

Who dreams?
Who does not dream?
Here is the conscious converse:
The rational delirium—
The phantom awareness.
Sleep is a monster
Out of whose depiction
Accept the paranoia.
There is no limit here
To stark invention.
Seek for no meaning;
All is reversed by sleep.
See only in these shadow-lit forms
So scrupulously defined
The shape of mindlessness.
Search for no myth—
Objectify the terror.
Here in the nightmare truth
Lies impulse to awaken.

MODERN ART

No longer is the painter merely mirror—
He dares attempt creation.
Into his hands he takes the too-familiar
And with a daring brush
Strikes it to chaos—
Out of the scattered words and planes
Builds the new image.
No longer hypnotized by surface-vision
He looks within and through,
Suggests rather than defines,
So that the observer too becomes creator
According to his power,
Sharing the central experience.

TO VAN GOGH

Your whirling suns achieve their end—
They blaze for me the same—
The burning stars, the turning moon,
Vortex and fire and flame.

I know the cypress tongues of fire
That lick the torrid air,
The little village unconcerned,
The glory everywhere.

I see the ochres of the sun
Pull the dull earth awry.
The constellations race and wheel
As wildly in my sky.

The sun-flower turns its lion head
Its vision manifold,
Everywhere autumn, amber, light,
Colours of fire and gold.
By storm and star and galaxy
Battered and reason-blind,
Now you have whirled the swirling heavens
With your sun-harried mind!

POINT LOBOS RESERVE

By KEN LEGG

Quotation: "The conservation of our natural resources and their proper use constitute the fundamental problem which underlies almost every other problem of our national life".—Theodore Roosevelt

I cannot think of any wildflower which blooms ahead of the Ribes (gooseberries aand currants). Even by December our canyon gooseberry (R. menziesii), has its fuchsia-like blossoms hanging from the underside of its branches. This is before those "earlies", the zygadene and buttercup, are about.

When live oak new growth is tender, shiny and unmarred by insect bites, pine pollen like light yellow dust is settling over everything and fringes the water puddles, and poison oak is coming to its itchy best; the gooseberry is full of flowers.

I speak of live oak and poison oak and pines for here is where we find the few gooseberries which grow in the Reserve. We see it not beside any trail except those of the deer and in the shady woodland.

This may seem like a dull part of the Reserve, away from the spectacular marine scene, but brown creepers with pure white throats and long, curved bills hold their tail tight against the tree and hitch up the trunks searching for food. In such a place a winter wren is sure to worry about our intrusion of his winter home and from a partially concealed stump he will bob and weave nervously like a wrestler coming out of his corner.

The wild gooseberry as a fruit is very disappointing as its large prickly berries are composed mostly of skin and seeds. But as an ornamental shrub it is very pleasing. The long, curving branches are thickly set with dark green leaves and hung with white and wine-colored, pendant flowers. The leaves are rough, glutinous and very spicy and thorns nearly an inch long grow from the stems.

Along the coast, the gooseberry usually inhabits dark, deep canyons. At Point Lobos it grows sparingly amid the pines where it flowers and produces fruit along with the other woods-inhabiting shrubs as honeysuckle and snow berry.

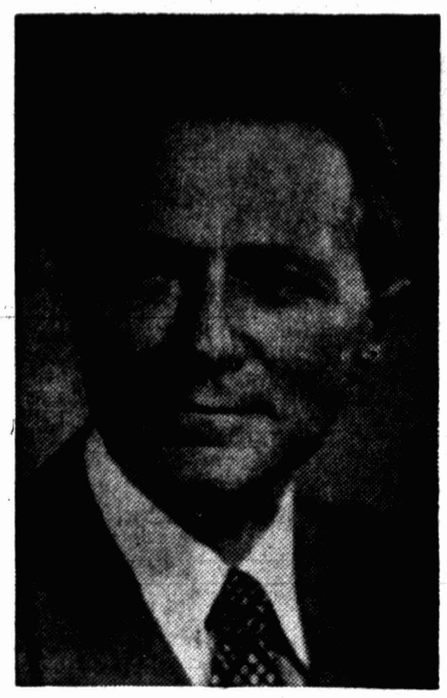
Songs, and the Songs of a Foolish Muezzin — which immediately preceded his attainment of full stature; one might even say that this preoccupation retarded his development. St. Thomas Aquinas was not swept off his feet by Averroes and Avicenna, the great Islamic philosophers; mediaeval Flemish painting was not vitiated because the Virgin and Child are often seen sitting on a Persian rug; and Mozart did not take seriously the fashionable Turquoiserie that adds piquancy to his "singspiel", Il Seraglio: for in each of these cases the citadel of Western culture was too strong to be taken by the Saracen. But Szymanowski lived poised on the periphery of a Europe committing suicide. Small wonder then that he sought escape from the bitter draught of destiny by drowning his sorrows, as it were, in the red wine of Hafiz.

Still Szymanowski was not so lost in dreams of long ago and far away after he did not hear the clarion call of Polish independence and rouse himself at its sound. It was then that he came at last into his own. Farewell to mosque and jug and hashish leaf! farewell to the slanty-eyed Richard Strauss that he might have been! An irresponsible scrivener of the day, Carl Van Vechten, had called upon him for "futurist wails from ruined Poland"; there came instead a mighty succession of works, as modern as Van Vechten could have wished but mirroring the triumphant spirit of a Poland that had burst its chains. Szymanowski took on a "plain heroic magnitude of mind" — here Milton's words surely are not wasted—and his works were with "celestial vigour arm'd". His place in modern music rests securely on those mature creations the Violin Concerti, the ballet Harnasie, the Second Quartet, the Stabat Mater and the Veni Creator, the Mazurkas, and the Symphonie concertante that synthesise his personal savour, his "off-beat" modernity, and his heightened appreciation of the Polish musical tradition, what he termed "the direct expression of the nature of the race". The course of his destiny is summed up and given its moving significence by Francois Maursiac's words: "I shall travel round this ravaged world until I reach the point from which I started; my childhood, the evening prayer with my forehead against my mother's bed, the preparation for death."



GEORGE NAY, C.S.
of Chicago, Illinois

First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Carmel, announces a free lecture on the subject, Christian Science: The Coincidence of Pure Science and Pure Religion, to be given in the church edifice, Monte Verde Street, on Thursday evening, February 12, at 8 o'clock.

The lecturer, George Nay, of Chicago, is a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Educated in Hungary, Mr. Nay graduated in architecture from the Polytechnic Institute in Budapest before coming to the United States in 1913. When we moved from the East Coast we really found out...
Gas and electricity are cheap in California

When Mr. and Mrs. Bare came West four years ago, they discovered, as so many other newcomers have, that gas and electricity cost much less here than in their former home.

Let P. G. and E.'s bargain gas and electricity do more of your work, bring you more of life's comforts. Nothing else you buy does so much—costs so little.

How P. G. and E.'s low rates save Mrs. Bare money...

In their charming San Francisco home, the Bares use these appliances for household comfort and convenience:

The Bares' P. G. and E. bill last month $15.96

In her former Eastern home the same amount of gas and electricity would cost $38.24

HI CHATTER

A long, long trail is unwinding. Thus we began the second semester, Monday. The Girls' League had a meeting for the purpose of electing officers. The outcome was: Carlene Daniels, president; Linda Feek, vice president; Jeanne Fratessa, secretary; and Judy Oliver, treasurer.

Also on Monday the Leaders' Club applications were distributed.

This semester is called "Senior Rush". The seniors make all sorts of preparations for graduation in June. Tuesday they met and chose the colors for their caps and gowns. The class chose the mixed colors, boys wearing navy blue and girls white. The contrast ought to be quite unusual.

Wednesday the new student council met for the first time. They have a lot of work in store for them, so they started getting under way.

Also on Wednesday, the student body was entertained with an exchange assembly from Pacific Grove High School.

The Leaders' Club applications were turned in and new members will be announced the day of the initiation, which is this coming Monday.

Thursday, the photographer for the year-book came and took pictures of all the new class officers, band, orchestra, choir and editors of the annual. The bok is shaping up quite well.

Friday is a red letter day. Pacific Grove plays Carmel in basketball at 7:00 o'clock. After the match, there will be the first inter-school dance since the new C.C.A.L. ruling. This dance is called the Co-Op Hop. The dance will be in the gym and the admission is ten cents for all Carmel students, and is on-the-house for our guests. The sponsors of the dance are the members of the Leaders' Club. The decorations will be sport scenes all-year-around. The master of ceremonies will be our new president, Gerry MacDonald. We hope that the students will co-op and come to the Co-Op Hop.

Tomorrow members of the student council will attend the C.C.A.L. Conference in Salinas. Fifteen councilors will learn more about the problems of this school and others like it. They will learn how to solve these problems to better their school. President Gerald MacDonald will lead a discussion on student court. These conferences help the relationships between the schools in our league.

By the way, those dreaded things called report cards came out Wednesday. Well maybe they aren't so dreaded after all.

Morehouses at Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morehouse were unexpectedly called upon to perform a pleasant task Saturday night when they were invited to "stand up" with Betty Jane West of Burlingame and Charles Robert Costales of Daly City, at their wedding. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Charles H. Burrill, father-in-law of Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, at 7:00 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Costales is engaged in business with a firm which deals with Mr. Morehouse, and the young couple came down here for a quiet wedding where they "could get away from all the fuss", according to Mrs. Morehouse, who stressed the beauty and dignity of the quiet ceremony. "Although there were only the five of us present," she said, "it seemed as though the church were filled."

Screen Tour Films Stolen

Despite the loss by theft in Los Angeles a week previously of all his films for showing on the current tour, with his projector and two motion picture cameras as well, Howard Cleaves kept his appointment for the Audubon Screen Tour on Monday evening at Sunset Auditorium, but with borrowed films. Mr. Cleaves, like half a million other car owners in California, had parked his car over-night on the street, securely locked as he supposed, but car thieves broke into it and made off with the work of years of unusual and irreplaceable night photography.

So, with borrowed projector and a film received that day, which he had never seen and for which he had only a brief, typed outline, he asked the large audience to bear with him and accept the substituted program. The film, from another Audubon lecturer, showed wild life in Texas, including shots of cattle ranges, a rodeo with hilarious steer-riding—and falling—and Texas longhorns for which the photographer had to go to Oklahoma. However, some cattlemen are trying to bring back the traditional longhorn to Texas, if only for show purposes.

The real wild life scenes were perhaps more rewarding, and the audience appreciated the films as well as Mr. Cleaves' effort and success in presenting good entertainment. Animals and birds in the rugged wilds, spectacular flocks of egrets, cranes, roseate spoonbills, as well as the smaller shorebirds and wild fowl of the plains and forests emphasized the variety found in the great state. Fields of gorgeous wild flowers, brilliant cactus blossoms, forests and mountains furnished a beautiful background for the creatures of the wild.

Present to meet Virginia were Col. and Mrs. Norman J. McMahon, Col. A. S. Bowen and Miss P. J. Bowen, Mrs. E. O. Sisson, Mrs. E. R. Van Deusen, Mrs. Joan Jones, Capt. and Mrs. D. L. Coleman, Col. Mrs. Cooke in Paris

The last letter received by Jim Cooke from his wife was postmarked Paris where she is currently enjoying herself immensely. Both an artist and a musician, Mrs. Cooke found the year 1952 one particularly outstanding as to music throughout the continent. She visited Austria for the music festivals, and was in Finland for three months last year. According to Mr. Cooke, his busy wife is attending art school in Paris and having a wonderful time. Mrs. George Vye was a Carmelite encountered in Paris on her recently completed visit to the continent, and the two spent many delightful hours together during the latter's five-month stay in the capital.

The Vyes Return

Mr. and Mrs. George Vye came back to Carmel from Europe a few weeks ago and Mrs. Vye came down with a bad case of pneumonia from which she has only recently recovered enough to take up her duties as manager of Lanz of California in Carmel.

Mrs. Vye reports that she and George bought a 4HP Renault and spent care-free days touring Italy, France and Spain. They were especially taken with the tiny republic of Andorra. Three months were spent in Cannes and five months in Paris, where Mrs. Vye visited with her family. Southampton, England, is the home of Mr. Vye's people and the Vyes crossed the Channel for a stay with them.

On their return to New York, they purchased a Hillman Minx and motored back to Carmel.

Mrs. Vye says that touring by auto on the continent is the only way to see the countries, and the least expensive.

Jeannine Viljoen Bride

Tom Bottare claimed Jeannine Viljoen as his bride Saturday morning last at a double ring ceremony performed by Father Berard Weishaar at Mission San Carlos Boromeo.

Jeannine, who was given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Viljoen of Carmel. Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luciano Bottaro of Pacific Grove, and is A/3c of the United States Air Force.

Jeannine's wedding gown was of white faille; the skirt was bouffant and the bodice was topped by a small bolero and a deep roll of French Galloon lace formed the collar. Long sleeves came to points at her wrists. A faille crown seeded with pearls caught an elbow-length veil.

Her maid of honor, Miss Faye Sticht of Carmel, were an American Beauty rose taffeta gown, ballerina style, and carried a bouquet of Pink Perfection camellias. The same flowers banded her hair.

Both Mrs. Viljoen and Mrs. Bottaro chose shades of blue for their gowns. Both mothers and Mrs. Sebastian Moscuzza, Tom's grandmother, wore pink rosebud corsages.

Tom, who was married in his Air Force uniform, asked Nat Agliano of Pacific Grove to be his best man, and Ben Viljoen, Jeannine's brother, to be usher.

The Carmel Women's Club was the scene of the wedding reception. The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake, candles in pewter holders and white flowers; Mrs. Leonard Lundeen of Orland, Jeannine's aunt, and Mrs. John Castorina, Tom's sister, assisted in serving the guests. Barbara Viljoen, sister of the bride, presided over the guest book.

Southern California and Yosemite were the destinations of the newly-weds for their honeymoon.

Heidi Ruster Six

Having attained the extremely important age of six years, Miss Heidi Ruster entertained a group of her friends at a birthday party held at noon, Monday, at Forest Hill School. Angel food cake and ice cream were consumed by her guests, and a red and green pinata filled with small toys was broken open to delight the young ladies and gentlemen present.

The social whirl of the day continued for Miss Ruster when she returned home to greet four other friends, Suzanne Byrne, Gael Cunningham, Sherri Skoog and Lindsay Jeffers. Red being Heidi's favorite color, decor for the occasion was carried out in the cake, the pinata hastily stuffed anew with fresh toys, and streamers that hung from the ceiling. In the center of the table grew a balloon tree. Peter Ruster, four, admitted on sufferance to the society of the older women present, distinguished himself by managing to drop the elaborately decorated cake flat on its face, and only the presence of mind of Katie Ruster, his mother, saved the day; she made a marble cake out of the once pristine frosting.

Farewell Tea for Miss Williston

Miss Agnes Williston, beloved member of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel, where she has made her home since 1924, is to be the honored guest at a farewell tea prior to her departure to Oakland next week. It will be held of the Wayfarer Tuesday afternoon from 3:00 o'clock until 4:30. Circle Three of the Women's Auxillary is sponsoring the event as a tribute to the lengthy term of self-effacing service Miss Williston has tendered during her long residence in Carmel. Mrs. E. G. Mott, chairman of Circle 3 has invited Miss Lucille Turner, Miss Etta Paul, Mrs. David Nixon, Mrs. J. M. Southwell and Mrs. Tom Douglass to pour at this occasion, which will be attended by Miss Williston's large group of friends and appreciative admirers.

Mrs. E. Leigh Mudge, chairman of the Women's Auxiliary, is assisting with the arrangements, also.

Miss Williston, a New Englander, and a Smith College graduate, spent her early years tutoring and teaching, and then devoted herself to assisting her father, the Reverend Martin L. Williston in his pastoral duties as Congregational minister in different sections of the United States.

Coming to Carmel in 1924 to spend a winter on the coast, she liked it so well that she determined to take up permanent residence here. She became absorbed in church and community activities, playing the organ, participating as a member of the Ladies' Calling Committee of the Church of the Wayfarer, and generously and untiringly giving of her time and efforts to every community cause that solicited her help.

Miss Williston is planning to make her home at the Beula Residential Home near Mills College, a veritable beehive of activities and recreational projects for its residents. She stressed the fact, during an interview yesterday morning, that she is not "retiring" to a "rest" home, far from it! She plans to enter into whatever projects afoot up there that interest her, and plans to visit her friends in Carmel with frequency.

USO Annual Dinner

Rose pink camellias, plucked by Mrs. Roger Fitch from her gardens in La Mesa, in Monterey, garlanded the tables at El Estero USO Wednesday night at the 12th Annual USO Merit Award Dinner, enjoyed by 300 members of the USO and their guests.

Present to cut the huge birthday cake baked at Fort Ord was Major General Robert C. McClure who did so with a cavalry sabre belonging to Colonel Roger Fitch. Admiral Frederick Moosbrugger, head of the Navy Post Graduate School, was at the speakers' table as were Army Language School's Lt. Colonel Robert De Mers, and Captain Wallace Sherrill, USN Commander of the Naval Airbase in Monterey, each one of whom addressed the diners. The staff and public were thanked on behalf of the men of the Armed Forces in the persons of a young corporal from Fort Ord and a sailor from the Naval Air Station.

After running commentary by Mr. Edward Cochran, Mr. Frank Adams read the list of Peninsula organizations contributing time and money to the USO and individual contributing 200 hours of volunteer service to the USO during the past year.

Special Services at Fort Ord put on a first-ranking professional program of entertainment, instrumental, vocal and dancing, which played to a wildly enthusiastic audience.

After a speech by Major General McClure commending solicitation of funds for the proposed ROC "West Point" in Korea, the guests and members adjourned for dancing in the lobby.

of the commission with subcommittees and professional assistance, so that less time will be spent on holding the line and more time devoted to constructive planning."

Review the zoning ordinance with ideas of strengthening and simplifying.

Overall plan for drainage and recommendations for financing.

Study of the traffic problem and opinion on advisability of providing arterial streets to divert traffic from the center of town.

Overall program of landscaping, reforestation, tree trimming.

Revision of the building code "to bring it up to date to provide for use of new materials and methods."

Plan for beach maintenance, providing for cleanliness and safety, and plan for administration for the Carmel River Beach which he stated that the county would probably turn over to the city for "housekeeping."

Work out a long range plan for getting utilities wires underground and yet avoid an increase in rates.

Long range plan for repair of city owned buildings, grounds, Forest Theater.

Study of the effect of incorporation of outlying areas would have from an economic and financial point of view.

He concluded that whenever the city council was required to make a decision on an issue, the planning commission should function as a research department for the council to provide statistics needde. "I should like to see the commission enlarged to nine members to bring in people who have background, training, Carmel viewpoint, willingness to work, and the time, and a regard for what Carmel means to the people."

It was at this point that he pointed out that the planning commission could function as a five member board until Whitaker's return, and when discussion developed the small measure of safety in such a procedure, suggested Schnyder.

Craig, voicing his disapproval of the snub to the planning commission in the suggestion of appointing a new man before reappointing the old members added that almost all of the projects the mayor had outlined for the planning commission to do, had been done by the commission at one time or another. The recommendations and plans had not been carried out by former councils because there was no money to finance them.

Craig implied that it was not the wish of the mayor to reappoint the old members and that in this he has the support of absent Whitaker, and that it was the intention of the mayor to fill all four appointments with new men.

At the time of writing this is the case, but it is our sincere hope that the mayor can be prevailed upon to change his mind before he takes final action. We agree with Donald Craig that though any and all of the men who have been proposed command respect in the community, two new men would be enough. Some of the old guard should be retained, especially when they have served so well and have the confidence of the community.

GUESSING RAISES FUNDS FOR DIMES DRIVE

Guessing at 25 cents a ballot on the amount of coins that have been deposited in the half gallon mayonnaise jar at the Pine Inn cocktail lounge produced $89.00 for the March of Dimes, and nearest guess $40.52 was made by Leah Stay of San Francisco.

When the Bank of Carmel finished its count of the contents of the jar, $40.87 was the score. Other near guesses were Ted Tremper's, $41.23; and Wick Parson's, $41.26.

Both contents of jar and proceeds from sale of ballots have been turned over to the March of Dimes.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Spirit" will be the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, February 8, with the Golden Text taken from John: "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth" (4:24).

Bible citations used in the sermon will include the following verse from the Second Epistle of Peter: "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord" (1:2).

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will read:

"Let us rid ourselves of the belief that man is separated from God, and obey only the divine Principle, Life and Love. Here is the great point of departure for all true spiritual growth" (p. 91).

Broken Heart
Cure at the MASON'S!

There's nothing like a tangible gift of some sort to let the little wife (or sweetheart) know that you think of her once in a while when she's not around.

And, if I may say so, just a check won't do. Most of the time she can write that herself . . . and other times she uses it for the food bill, or shoes for the kids.

Whatever your plans for Valentine's Day, why don't you also include Vanette hosiery, here exclusively in Carmel. She may fall over in a dead faint . . . but, at the same time, it will be only from shock, not from hunger.

Right now, with February 14th only a week away, we've as good a selection of Vanette hosiery as you'd want:

Sheer (15-51) at 1.35 a pair and extra sheer (15-60) at 1.50. The numbers in parenthesis probably don't mean a thing to you—but to the girl involved, they mean leg beauty in Royal Coronation colors for Spring, 1953:

1. Crown Ruby: A mauve tone with a rosy cast to wear with Spring's pinks and the incoming range of violet shades.
2. Crown Topaz: A golden beige that complements the sunny shades of spring — the entire gold range, clear yellows and beiges.
3. Crown Sapphire: A pinkish mauve-tone to wear with navy, the entire blue family and black. Striking complement for red, too.

We'll wrap the Vanettes as a gift for you and also throw in a special Vanette valentine. (But it wouldn't hurt you also to go to a gift shop and buy one of those old-fashioned, smooshy valentines, too.

The Mason's, as you know, are on the east side of Dolores, between Fifth and Sixth. Carmel phone: 7-3836. (And she'll also be surprised that you remembered her S & H stamps which mean an extra saving with your purchase.

—Bob Mason

P. S. Since we're talking about hearts, let's also remember the Heart Fund drive now going on. YOU might benefit from its research some day.

DEADLINE SET ON SIGNUP FOR MYLAR

Supporters of Fred Mylar for Carmel postmaster should get their signatures down on one of the many petitions stationed around town before 5:00 o'clock Tuesday, according to Corum Jackson, Republican Central Committee representative from Carmel.

Jackson wishes to present the petitions at the meeting of the committee in Salinas Tuesday night, when it will decide on the candidate it will recommend for postmaster.

Petitions can be found at Carmel Realty, Camera Craft, and Fortiers Drug Store.

VALLEY COLUMN

Men of the Parish of Our Lady of Carmel are announcing their third annual supper dance to be given at the Rancho del Monte Country Club, March 14. Dancing will be from 9:00 o'clock until one, and the music will be furnished by the De Maria Brothers' Orchestra.

Feature of the evening will be the donation of a Hereford heifer by the Violini Brothers of Buena Vista on the River Road near Salinas, who maintain a summer home in the Valley. Father Ignatius Loughran says that an anonymous donor has secured a Hampshire hog which will grace the pen of some lucky recipient that same night. All hopeful people who plan to attend had better start building a corral or a pig pen, just in case, adds Father Loughran.

Supper will be furnished by the ladies of the Parish.

Chairman of the supper dance is Victor Silva. Other committee members will be announced at a later date.

Ladies of the Altar Guild of Our Lady of Carmel parish are going to laugh at superstition when they give their Valentine card party at Wibby's Carousel Friday, February 13, starting at eight o'clck.

There will be door prizes and plenty of refreshments for which Wibby is noted. In honor of Chinese New Year, a cake will be raffled off in Chinese fashion: at a given signal, quarters will be placed in the cake by competing ladies and when a bell is rung, the last person to place a quarter therein wins the cake.

Everyone is invited to make up their own tables and bring their own cards to play games of their own choosing; reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Kay Brownell, 9609 or Mrs. M. C. Graham, 9912.

Ellouise Simpson

Mrs. Ellouise Anne Simpson, wife of Major John O. Simpson, USA Ret., died in her Pebble Beach home the morning of February 1. She was 37 years of age at the time of her death.

A native of Illinois, she was a graduate of Roycemore School and of Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois; a member of the Junior League of Evanston, the Santa Ysabel Chapter of the D.A.R. in San Jose. While attending Northwestern University, Mrs. Simpson was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma and belonged to the Monterey Peninsula chapter of that sorority.

Her husband and her mother, Mrs. Lulu S. Pope, who is now at Pebble Beach, are her only immediate survivors.

Funeral services were held at the Litle Chapel-by-the-Sea, Monday, February 2, with Dr. George Davidson officiating.

Friends of the deceased are requested to make contributions in Mrs. Simpson's name to the Pope Foundation For Braces For Polio Victims in Kankakee, Illinois.

Nellie N. Naylor

Mrs. Nellie N. Naylor died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Nicholas of Pebble Beach, on February 4. She was born in Greenbay, Wisconsin, and she was 83 years of age.

A communicant of St. Mary's-By-The-Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove until her health forced her into comparative retirement from attendance, Mrs. Naylor was a well-loved member of that congregation.

Besides her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nicholas, she leaves her sister, Mrs. Anna MacFarlane of Redondo Beach, and three grandchildren, Bob and Fred Barbour, former residents of Carmel, and Richard Nicholas of Pebble Beach.

Funeral services are to be conducted at the Dorney Farlinger Funeral home by the Reverend John Powell, today.

POST GRAD. SCHOOL LECTURE

Atomic control will be the subject for the third open-to-the-public lecture of the Sigma Xi series at the Post Graduate School, February 19.

Dr. George J. Thaler, of the Navy School faculty, will scale his talk to layman comprehension, bypassing push-buton warfare, and pilotless space-ships, in favor of the more easily understandable applications, and will begin with the common temperature controlled oven in the modern gas range. The other systems will be developed and the lecture will close with a detailed study of one practical system.

Minnie Raymond

Mrs. Minnie Maude Raymond, wife of Chester J. Raymond, Carmel Valley, died at a local hospital Tuesday, February 3. She was 68 years af age at the time of her death.

Mrs. Raymond was a member of Ocean Spray, Chapter 68 Order of Eastern Star and of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, Monterey, and the Monterey Chapter of Neighbors of Woodcraft.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Raymond leaves her daughter, Mildred Raymond, her son Paul Raymond, and three grandchildren, Jeffery, Neil and Muriel Raymond, all of Carmel Valley. Surviving her is her brother, Edward Lundin of Santa Clara, and several cousins in Minnesota.

Funeral services were conducted by Chaplain John R. Wright at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, February 5.
